Big Hedgehog and Little Hedgehog I'm not afraid!

A warm hearted and encouraging story showing that it's perfectly ok to be afraid

When the little hedgehog woke up early in the morning, the big hedgehog was not there.

The little hedgehog very carefully stuck his nose out of the door.

"Big Hedgehog, where are you?" called the Little Hedgehog.

But the little hedgehog got no answer.

The little hedgehog gathered up all his courage, walked out of the house and set off to look for the big hedgehog.

"Oh, come on!" said the Little Hedgehog. "I'm not afraid!"

"Good morning, Little Hedgehog. You are already awake!"
The big hedgehog was just coming up the stairs. "What are you doing here? Were you afraid I was gone?"
The little hedgehog was beaming with joy that the big hedgehog was back.

"Oh, come on, I knew you had to be here in the basement. I was just coming to get you. I'm not afraid!"
"Look, Little Hedgehog, I've packed us some provisions, shall we go for an excursion together?"

This lovely picture book is about the universal subject 'being afraid' and makes it easy for adults to discuss it with children. You can be afraid of the dark, like little hedgehog, or you can be afraid of rolling down the hill, like big hedgehog. We all have our fears and that is ok, it can be lifesaving when a fox comes along...
